It feels proud to announce the publication of the first volume of the Journal of Periodontal Medicine and Clinical Practice (JPMCP). This Journal provides a glimpse into a few of the many high quality research activities conducted by the talented faculty/students/clinicians globally. The Journal is a compilation of outstanding papers from numerous disciplines related to our field, submitted by clinicians who have been involved in faculty-mentored research, scholarly, and creative activities. The journal now has an excellent flow of submissions. It has been able to reach an emerging community of researchers exploring innovative learning technologies and to attract excellent papers on a broad range of topics from many countries. We hope to continue this trend over the next few years while further expanding the journal's coverage. We would like to thank all the contributing authors for providing such a rich variety of outstanding research articles on a broad range of exciting topics. We have had an overwhelming response from some very eminent Editors and researchers globally to support as Editorial Team. I look forward to make this endeavour very meaningful. Among our further actions is to extend the Editorial Board and to plan special issues on a range of hot topics, such as new learning technologies and ubiquitous learning. I wish all the readers a happy journey with JPMCP.
